

Mechanical filtration, based on elective concentration of particles, as an innovative method of water treatment

Karataev O., Karataeva E.

Kazan Federal University, 420008, Kremlevskaya 18, Kazan, Russia

Abstract

© Published under licence by IOP Publishing Ltd. The paper describes a method for purification of waste water in a hydrocyclone by solid phase particles. To achieve more efficient cleaning, a technique is proposed for calculating the separation processes in hydrocyclones based on the equation for the radial motion of a particle associated with an air bubble.

<http://dx.doi.org/10.1088/1757-899X/412/1/012030>

References

- [1] Lagutkin M G and Pavlovsky G V 1999 Analysis of possibility of organizing the flotation process in a hydrocyclone 2 214-215 Thesis report of 12 International scien. conf. «Mathematical methods in engineering and technology» Velikiy Novgorod
- [2] Masagutov D F, Pushnov A S and Kashapov N F 2014 Influence of geometric characteristics of regular structured attachments on hydraulic resistance and efficiency of heat and mass transfer processes Chemical Technology 15 564-571
- [3] Yablonsky V O 2012 Choice of design and modes of operation of the hydrocyclone for wastewater treatment of PVC production by pressure flotation Bulletin of Volgograd State Technical University 1 68-70
- [4] Mongait I L and Rodziller I D 1958 Methods of wastewater treatment (Moscow: State scientific and technical edit) 251
- [5] Karataev O R, Markina A A and Shamsutdinova Z R 2014 Wastewater treatment of petrochemical industry using crystallization and flotation methods Bulletin of Kazan Technological University 17 351-355